Kootenai County Solid Waste

Material Reuse Program

Material Reuse Program Guidelines:

Kootenai County Solid Waste currently provides 2 Household Hazardous Waste Collection Facilities where residents can safely dispose of unused household chemicals. Many of these products are useable, some being brand new, and are disposed of due to no longer being needed within the household. Instead of processing and disposing of these products through a contracted hazardous waste hauler, technicians sort through the products and offer the useable material FREE of charge to the public. The guidelines of this program are as follows:

- You must be 18 years of age or older to utilize this program
- A material waiver must be signed before any product is taken
- A maximum of 5 items can be taken per day per site
- No commercial customers can make use of this program, only residential customers
- Products taken cannot be resold or used for profit in any way

Program Notes: while we cannot guarantee the quality or effectiveness of the products within the reuse program, the technicians do their best to segregate quality products. We cannot guarantee stock on hand of any particular product, as it is purely reliant on what we take in from the public through the hazardous waste collection program.
